Today's Special: Kitten Season!

Billy Joel
(BJ)(Male)

Billy Joel was brought in this past Sunday. He's a Shitzu. Super sweet and gets along with everyone.

WE HAVE KITTENS!

We've had three litters of kittens already and a fourth one on the way. Some are already adopted, but there's still plenty looking for homes.

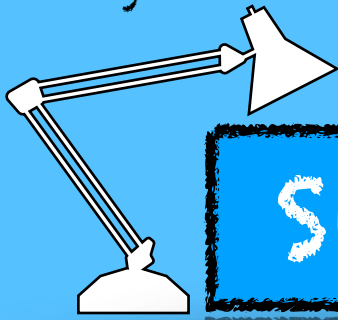

Give us a call or message on Facebook if you'd like a little kitty of your own.

Orca
(Male)

Orca is an older kitty we've had for a couple months. His owner passed away recently. He loves attention.

Special Spotlight

Millie Rae

Millie Rae was brought to us when her owner could no longer care for her, who had had her since she was a kitten.

She is super sweet and makes a lovely little squeak for a meow.

And she loves to talk to you.

She is still waiting on her vet visit but will be available to go home as soon as she's done.

She would love a new forever home.

Artemis

Artemis was rescued by a family, but they could not keep her. She is super sweet and loves everyone. She's still a pup and would love a home.

Rico

Rico is a super playful and lovable siamese. He can be a little shy when you first meet him but will warm up if given the chance. He needs a home. He would love it if you could consider giving him one.

Snowball.

Snowball is one of our newer dogs. He is about two years old. He is protective of himself and his housemates. He is also a little shy. He is sweet once he gets comfortable.

This Weeks Update:

We recently sent down our next class for Puppies for Parole.

What is Puppies for parole?

Puppies for Parole is a training program held at the Charleston prison where the dogs undergo a 10 to 12 week training session. They learn basic commands such as 'Sit' and 'stay'. They can also learn some pretty cool tricks. Visit the MODOC (Missouri Department of Corrections) website, click on the programs tab and you'll see the Puppies for Parole link. From their you can find the list of dogs available through the program, including our dogs. We encourage you to take a look at their website! And maybe even find another furry friend you want to take home!

We hope you're as excited about this as we are!
